Building Financially Confident Workplaces

Our Belief

Every organisation wants healthier, happier, and more productive employees.

Over the last two decades, companies have transformed the workplace by investing in physical wellness, mental health, learning, and employee experience. These initiatives have improved millions of lives and fundamentally changed how organisations think about people.

Yet one of the biggest sources of stress remains largely invisible.

Money.

Financial stress doesn't stay at home when employees come to work. It follows them into meetings, difficult decisions, family conversations, sleepless nights, and ultimately into the workplace. It quietly affects focus, confidence, relationships, productivity, and long-term well-being.

Despite this, financial wellness remains one of the least developed pillars of employee well being.

We believe that has to change.

Just as organisations now consider physical and mental wellness essential employee benefits, we believe financial wellness will become the next standard of the modern workplace.

That belief is why Koshpal exists.

The Problem We See

Most financial solutions available today were never designed to improve long term financial well being.

Some help people invest.

Some help people borrow.

Some help people save.

Some offer a budgeting app.

Some provide a webinar once or twice a year.

Each solves a small part of a much larger problem.

Imagine visiting a doctor only when you're sick. You spend two or three minutes explaining the problem, receive a prescription, and leave. The immediate issue may improve, but no one has the time to understand your lifestyle, your habits, or help you build a healthier future.

Now imagine something different.

Imagine spending an hour with a trusted doctor every two weeks. Over time, those conversations become about far more than treating illness. You begin understanding nutrition, exercise, sleep, prevention, and healthy habits. Instead of simply treating problems, you're learning how to stay healthy for life.

That is the difference between traditional financial advice and Koshpal.

We don't want to be there only when someone has a financial emergency.

We want to help people build a healthier financial life long before problems appear.

Our Philosophy

There is an old saying:

"Give someone a fish, and you feed them for a day. Teach them how to fish, and you feed them for a lifetime."

At Koshpal, we believe financial wellness works the same way.

Helping someone choose an investment, refinance a loan, or reduce a tax bill may solve today's problem.

But tomorrow, a new financial decision arrives.

A new responsibility.

A new life event.

A new challenge.

Our goal isn't simply to solve individual financial problems.

Our goal is to help people become confident enough to solve future problems themselves.

Technology can provide answers.

Education can provide knowledge.

But lasting financial confidence comes from continuous learning, trusted guidance, and better financial habits built over time.

That is the future we are building.

What is Koshpal?

Koshpal is a privacy first Employee Financial Wellness Platform that enables organisations to make financial wellness a core employee benefit.

We partner with organisations to provide employees with continuous financial support through intelligent technology, personalised education, behavioural insights, and unlimited access to certified financial experts.

Rather than offering one-time consultations or selling financial products, Koshpal helps employees build healthier financial habits, improve financial confidence, and make better financial decisions throughout every stage of life.

For organisations, Koshpal transforms financial wellness into measurable business value by improving employee well-being, productivity, engagement, and retention while providing anonymised workforce insights without compromising individual privacy.

How Koshpal Works

We believe financial wellness isn't created in a single conversation.

It is built through thousands of small decisions made consistently over time.

Our platform combines four essential pillars into one integrated experience.

Learn

Employees receive personalised financial education that adapts to their stage of life and financial journey. Instead of generic information, learning is practical, relevant, and immediately applicable.

Understand

Through AI-powered insights and behavioural intelligence, employees gain a better understanding of their financial habits, helping them identify patterns, improve decision-making, and build long-term financial confidence.

Connect

Every employee has unlimited access to certified financial experts for one-on-one conversations. These sessions are not about selling products—they are about understanding personal goals, answering questions, solving challenges, and providing trusted guidance whenever it is needed.

Grow

Financial wellness is not measured by how much someone knows—it is measured by how confidently they make financial decisions over time. Koshpal continuously supports employees as their financial lives evolve, from their first salary to major life milestones and retirement planning.

What Makes Koshpal Different

Many platforms focus on transactions.

Others focus on education.

Some focus on coaching.

Some focus on technology.

Koshpal brings them together into one continuous financial wellness journey.

We are not a budgeting app.

We are not a loan platform.

We are not an investment marketplace.

We are not a financial advisory firm.

We are building the infrastructure that enables organisations to deliver financial wellness at scale.

Our platform combines practical money management, financial education, behavioural insights, AI-powered guidance, unlimited access to certified financial experts, and privacy-first HR analytics into one integrated platform.

Everything we build is guided by one principle:

Always act in the employee's best interest.

We do not earn commissions by promoting investments.

We do not push financial products.

Trust is our business model.

Because financial wellness only works when employees know the guidance they receive is independent, unbiased, and designed to help them—not sell to them.

Our Vision

We believe that within the next decade, financial wellness will stand alongside physical and mental wellness as one of the three fundamental pillars of employee well-being.

Our ambition is not simply to build another HR platform.

It is to create the trusted financial wellness infrastructure for workplaces around the world.

A future where every employee has access to trusted financial guidance.

A future where organisations measure success not only by revenue and growth, but also by the financial confidence of their people.

A future where financial wellness is no longer a privilege, but a standard workplace benefit.

That future is what Koshpal is building.
